BOOK CLUB BOOK REVIEW

The 19th Wife by David Ebershoff
By Kelly - 3rd Tuesday Book Club

This fictional, crime-drama based on real, historical people told through narrative and punctuated by newspaper articles and letters, took a few chapters to outline the characters and the dual story lines. By that stage I really wanted to know if Becky-Lyn killed her husband or not. As a firm believer in the church of 'accept others and be nice', religion often stumps me. The extreme beliefs of 'The Firsts' (a break off faction of the Mormon church) and their wholehearted acceptance of polygamy are a good example of why I don't understand faith. If you had to share your partner with 18 other 'wives' and their numerous children murder would probably cross your mind, too! This book offers an insight into how 'celestial marriage' effects those it is thrust upon, especially the children. I'm definitely glad it was on our list.
