BOOK CLUB BOOK REVIEW

The Poisonwood Bible by Barbara Kingsolver
By Jill - 2nd Wednesday Book Club

In 1959 in a small village in the Congo, social upheaval is caused by the arrival of Reverend Nathan Price, his wife and 4 daughters, to run a mission. Dealing with food shortages, torrential rain, drought, disease and death they try to adapt to this way of life.

Barbara Kingsolver writes a beautiful woven story using the perspectives of all five women. Each character has a very different viewpoint of the events on their journey so we as readers get to see how the Congo shapes each of their futures. Each also speaks of Nathan, his single mindedness as he tries to convert the villagers to Christianity, and his equally unyielding and dogmatic approach to being a husband and father.

This book shows how the human spirit responds, adapts and grows to the environment around them. A thoroughly engaging and enjoyable read.
